MISSION ROBBERED.

The Peniel Home Again Entered by Burglars.

The Peniel Mission Home, on Hotel street, appears to be a mark for the petty larceny gentry who are at present infesting the town.

Hardly a month ago the premises of the Mission were burgled and $12.50 in cash and nearly $200 worth of jewelry taken away. Last night lightsome digits were again busy among the boxes, shelves and drawers of the Peniel Home. Fortunately, nothing of value was stolen, as nothing of value was lying around loose. Some candy was removed but a cigar and box of matches was left in exchange.

H. D. Adams, the Mission caretaker, said last night that the place was broken into during meeting hour. He is of the opinion that the job was done by a professional and that skeleton keys were used. He also thinks that the thief was familiar with the rooms and structure of the house.

Burglaries of this kind are becoming very frequent in Honolulu, no less than three having been reported in the last ten days. A number of shady characters are calling the City their home just now and it behooves housekeepers to see that the floors and windows of their houses are securely fastened when away from home.

TAR, BIKE AND THE HACKMAN

A Mix-up Which Resulted in a Badly Wrecked Wheel.

The novel sight of a British tar working furiously at the pedals of a hired bicycle which he drove along at a slow pace on Hotel street did not attract much attention until the jackie reached the corner of Fort and Hotel streets. At this juncture a hack driven by a Portuguese, and containing a fair passenger who hailed from the slopes of Punchbowl rounded the corner at a rapid gait. The driver was so much taken up with the smiles of his passenger in the rear seat that he had eyes for little save her. Instead of driving his horse toward the mauka side of Hotel street, he turned the corner sharply.

King Edward's little blue-jacket, who seldom rides anything but a ship, had no opportunity to maneuver either upon the sidewalk or toward the opposite side of the street. In an instant the horse struck the wheel and the jackie and both went down in a heap upon the recently sprinkled thoroughfare. He was thrown to one side by a vigorous movement of one of the horse's hoofs, but the bicycle did not fare so luckily. The horse struggled over the mesh of spokes, rims and frame, and passed it along to the wheels of the vehicle. When the hack had left the machine in its wake, the bike was a shapeless mass of metal. Without waiting to see what damage he had inflicted the driver whipped up his horse and drove to Nuuanu street and turned up that thoroughfare. The sailor raised himself from his muddled position and woefully inspected his wrecked steed. Chester Doyle and Officer Lambert had been witnesses to the accident. Doyle saw a rig near by and hailing the owner asked him to pursue the hack. The owner obligingly did so, and the Japanese interpreter caught the driver at School street and brought him to the station house. The sailor demanded that he make good the amount of damages to the wheel or he would prosecute him. The Portuguese, after demurring and claiming the accident was due to the sailor's bad steering of the handlebars, finally consented to pay the same. The entire party went to the bicycle shop and the amount was fixed at $23. As a further balm for the sailor's wounded feelings and interrupted ride the sailor put in a claim for the necessary repairs to take out new wheel for a two-hours' ride. This the Portuguese driver also paid, and the briny son of Britain saw the town a-wheel after all.

CLIMBED THE POLE.

Agile Feat of a Young Hawaiian That Drew a Crowd.

A daring feat was performed yesterday afternoon by Charles van Geislin in mounting to the top of the flag-staff on the E. O. Hall & Son's building, corner of Fort and King streets. The staff is a pine stick, well anchored, and towers far above the street. A short time since the ladders were drawn through the pulley and the staff became a useless ornament. Young van Geislin volunteered to reeve a new rope and at 3 o'clock. As soon as the pedestrians on the street below saw what was about to be done, they stopped and large crowds watched the young Hawaiian essay to climb up the smooth stick. Tying the line to his waist, he removed his shoes and stockings, spat upon his hands and embraced the staff. Monkey-like he worked his way up slowly. When half way to the top the pole began to sway under his weight and his jerky movements, and he had to work along more cautiously. When three-quarters up he clung to the pole with his arms and feet and again spat upon his palms. With a few short, easy lifts he finally reached the goal and calmly took the line from his waist, reeved it through the block, dropped one end and then slid down the stick, holding on to the opposite end.

TAROENA

IS THE FOOD THAT MAKES HAWAII FAMOUS...

Tucked away in the grip of nearly every traveler is a package of TAROENA FOOD. He has learned to like it and is taking TAROENA home to show "the folks" what pot really is. Many of them are taking it because of its valuable merit as a food for dyspepsia, having discovered its value from personal use.

TAROENA is the one food that will make thin people fat. It isn't quantity but quality of food that puts on flesh. TAROENA is medicine as well as food, for it tones up the stomach, the mineral salts, so valuable to the blood, are presented in a way to be readily taken up.

For those who travel by sea and suffer seasickness TAROENA will prove a boon. It "stays down" on the stomach when no other food will. It brings relief and strength and gets the stomach "settled" so that it will receive other food. There is no safer food for infants. TAROENA develops the whole child-body, brain and nerves. It makes puny children strong, robust and healthy. Endorsed by the medical profession everywhere.
